A note from our Chairperson Margaret McCullough

I have been part of the JLS team since 1994. I became the first female director on the 1 June 1998 and the first female chairperson of the company on the 25 March 2021. The "old guard" of the firm were receptive to transformation all those years ago and when considering succession within the firm, they were open to considering a female attorney! Since then, many more ladies have joined JLS and we are now a director base of 5 ladies and 4 men.

Over the years, JLS has embraced the process of transformation in all respects, and we are proud to have a young, ambitious, capable and diverse team of directors.

We offer expertise to our clients across the spectrum of legal services and are able to assist our clients with their conveyancing requirements, with litigious and family law matters, with pension fund law, and with their wills, the administration of estates and trust law.

We are much more than simply a law firm that provides a service to our clients. We pride ourselves upon our involvement within the community. Our directors are involved in various aspects of the community which includes sitting on boards and trusts on a voluntary basis which boards and trusts provide care to our senior citizens, and to the safety and security of the community we live in.

Myself and my co-director Whyona Sithapersad are proud to have represented the legal profession on the Legal Provincial Council, KwaZulu Natal, and were elected as representatives of the legal profession in the first council appointed after the Legal Practice Act was promulgated.

I am proud and grateful to be part of the JLS team.

As our logo states – "More than just Suits!"

J Leslie Smith & Company Inc.

Our history

J Leslie Smith was founded by John Leslie Smith on the 4th April 1921. He opened an office in Timber street, not for one second imagining that he was about to build one of Pietermaritzburg's biggest law firms. His priorities were to find clients, and provide for his family. With lots of heart, hard work and sheer determination, he built up a client base and with his expanding business, on 1st July 1931, he moved to the O'Keefe building in Longmarket Street.

On 1st July 1935 J Leslie Smith was delighted to have his brother, Arthur Austen Smith, join the firm making it the start of a true family business. To seal the family business, on 1st July 1938 the third brother, Eric Moore Smith, joined the partnership making it a family trio.

While the business was being built, so were families. On 1st January 1957 Patrick Leslie Smith, the son of John Leslie Smith, became a partner in the firm.

The family continued to grow and on 1st January 1963 AP Austen Smith, the son of Arthur Austen Smith, became a partner in the growing family business.

In 1968, John Leslie Smith was able to put his feet up and retire. His hard work and perseverance had laid the foundation and he was ready to pass on the reigns. Sadly in the same year Arthur Austen Smith passed away.

By then the company had grown to a complement of 19 staff members and was still growing. James Bernard Austen Smith, son of Arthur Austen Smith, became a partner in 1973, after having served his articles and practiced as a Professional Assistant in the family business.

In 1974 Graham John Moore Smith, son of Eric Moore Smith, became a partner and it was once more time to move. The firm moved to the PEBS building in the same year and continued to grow.

Two of the firm's most historic moves were, firstly, the move in 1988 to Brasfort House and then, in 1998, the move out of Brasfort House. During the move into the building the furniture did not fit into the lifts and the movers spent hours carrying furniture up the fire escape steps. By the end of the day they were extremely exhausted and the furniture was badly damaged. Moving out was even more dramatic - Longmarket Street was closed as a huge crane was hired to take the furniture out via the boardroom balcony. That, to date, was the final move. The firm purchased its current premises at 332 Jabu Ndlovu (Loop) Street, Pietermaritzburg and decided to stay.

J Leslie Smith was formed as a family business, and the family ethos still exists. Despite the large staff complement, we are still a family, and we try and make our clients feel part of the family by providing a friendly, personal and professional service to them.
